

NEW GENERATION EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT

The New Generation European Parliament project is, in my opinion, interesting because it allows students to gain confidence with the institutions of the EU. Having familiarity with the EU and its institutions is really important, in fact today the EU is at a turning point: it could collapse or start a progress of stronger integration that may bring to a federal union. Even though the European Union is still quite well liked, recently there has been a decrease of its popularity and it has been often strongly criticised, but most of those critics are not constructive and are caused by misinformation about the Union and its action and the lack of familiarity that citizens have with the EU. Knowing better the European institutions and the treaties that control them surely helps to make constructive critics to the EU, and to see, on the other hand, the importance of being a European citizen.
